

Creating new offices and “branded” meeting room space - Matrix Networks

Who's the customer?

Matrix Networks designs, installs, project manages and facilitates the installation of utility networks, for businesses throughout the UK. They also have considerable knowledge and expertise in the renewable energy sector via an independent Renewables Division.

Having used us before for a small project at their office in Northampton, Cubex Contracts were asked to submit a proposal to refurbish their new office in Bury St Edmunds.

What was the brief?

Before refurbishment of any space could be discussed the customer involved us in the selection of the new premises, asking our advice on what could be achieved, until finally choosing a modern flint stone building with an exposed oak trussed ceiling.

Once the new premises had been selected we submitted a design and costs to create a modern and fresh space for the directors office and board room, further offices downstairs, as well as the creation of a small “kitchenette” area.

Functionality, design and brand were important to this customer

About the project

It was very important to the customer that the new design would not only fulfill a functional need, but reflect the high quality and professional image of their brand. We met the brief by suggesting the following:

- quality glass partitioning between the directors office and boardroom, to allow for flow of light and provide the opportunity to install branded glass film for an understated and elegant finish
- new high quality audio visual equipment, to reflect the modern surroundings
- new lighting scheme to enhance the space and ensure functional areas were properly lit
- quality flooring and high end wood veneer furniture.

The project was completed in seven days, by a team of eight different contractors including glaziers, partition fitters, decorators, a carpet layer and an electrician. Cubex Contracts appointed and managed the project team from day one until the site was handed back to the customer.
